

Are you a migrant worker in the United States? HERE IS WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT COVID-19:

The end of the emergency

- As of May 11th, 2023, COVID-19 will not be considered a public health emergency in the United States
- COVID-19 response programs will not continue operating like they did before.

The challenges

- COVID-19 has not disappeared; it continues to be a risk to your health.
- Access to tests, information, vaccination and services to mitigate infections and their effects may have a direct cost for people.

Stay informed and use available resources!

- 1 Continue taking protective measures in your workplace and your community:
The basic recommendations continue to be very effective: use masks, wash your hands, improve ventilation, avoid contact with infected people and keep a healthy distance.
- 2 Stay up-to-date with your vaccines against COVID-19 while they are still free and help your loved ones get vaccinated!
Stay up-to-date with the most recent vaccine recommended by the CDC, available for people six months and older.
  - You can learn more at Call for Health:
+1 737-414-5121
- 3 Take a test: There are antigen and PCR tests available without cost, until they run out. You can find a place near you here:
testinglocator.cdc.gov/Home
- 4 Stay up-to-date with SOL: Go to covid-chat.org to answer your questions about:
  - Your labor rights
  - Your right to health and safety in the workplace

*Information current as of June 1, 2023.

Protect your health, defend your rights.
Contact CDM at 1 855-234-9699 (United States) and 800-590-1773 (Mexico)
healthwithinourreach.org